MISSIONARIES KILLED IN THE YEAR 2020

“It is painful to recall that in this very moment, there are many Christians in various parts of the world who are suffering from persecution, and we must hope and pray that their trials will soon end. They are many: today’s martyrs outnumber the martyrs of the first centuries. Let us express our closeness to these brothers and sisters. We are a single body and these Christians are the bleeding limbs of the body of Christ who is the Church.”

Pope Francis, General Audience, April 29, 2020

MISSIONARIES KILLED IN 2020

Vatican City (Agenzia Fides) – According to information gathered by Agenzia Fides, in 2020 20 missionaries were killed in the world: 8 priests, 1 religious man, 3 religious women, 2 seminarians, 6 lay people. This year the highest number of missionaries killed returns to be registered in America, where 5 priests and 3 lay people were killed (8). Followed by Africa, where 1 priest, 3 religious women, 1 seminarian, 2 lay people were killed (7). In Asia 1 priest, 1 seminarian and 1 lay man. In Europe 1 priest and 1 religious man. In the last 20 years, from 2000 to 2020, 535 pastoral workers have been killed in the world, 5 of whom are Bishops.

Agenzia Fides continues its service to collect information regarding the missionaries killed during the year. We use the term "missionary" for all the baptized, aware that "in virtue of their Baptism, all the members of the People of God have become missionary disciples. All the baptized, whatever their position in the Church or their level of instruction in the faith, are agents of evangelization" (EG 120). As it has been for some time, the annual list of Fides does not look only to Missionaries ad gentes in the strict sense, but tries to record all the baptized engaged in the life of the Church who died in a violent way, not only "in hatred of the faith". For this reason, we prefer not to use the term "martyrs", if not in its etymological meaning of "witness", in order not to enter into the question of the judgment that the Church might eventually deliver upon some of them, after careful consideration, for beatification or canonization.

Even in 2020 many pastoral workers lost their lives during attempted hold-ups and robberies, ferociously committed, in impoverished, degraded social contexts, where violence is the rule of life, the authority of the state was lacking or weakened by corruption and compromises and in the total lack of respect for life and for every human right. None of them carried out striking feats or actions, but simply shared the same daily life as the majority of the population, bearing their evangelical witness as a sign of Christian hope.

Recalling the 40th anniversary of the death of four North American missionaries killed in El Salvador, where they were kidnapped, raped and assassinated by a paramilitary group, during the general audience on 2 December, Pope Francis said: "They were serving in El Salvador within the context of the civil war. With evangelical dedication, and at great risk, they brought food and medicine to the displaced and helped the poorest families. These women lived their faith with great generosity. They are an example for everyone to become faithful missionary disciples".

This is the key to understanding the earthly events of the killed missionaries: parish priests who shared everything they had with the people entrusted to their care, hit by desperate criminals looking for who knows what treasure hidden in the church, or victims of one of the marginalized people to whom they dedicated every day of their life; religious women engaged in the education of the younger generations, attacked while carrying out their service or who did not hesitate to risk their lives in order to save the children entrusted to them; or young people, even girls, who shared the Christian commitment with enthusiasm and conviction, in situations of blind violence that do not take age into account; lay catechists committed to being peacemakers and witnesses to the faith among communities dispersed in the most inaccessible areas. A separate mention deserves the testimony of an eighteen-year-old seminarian kidnapped in Nigeria, where lack of security and kidnappings are the order of the day, who was killed because, according to his killer, "he continued to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ" to his kidnappers. All of them lived by giving their service with generosity and dedication, silently, without looking at the risks and even less at "working" hours, in order to help those in need: they are truly "an example for everyone to become faithful missionaries".

The provisional list compiled annually by Fides, must therefore be added to the long list of many of whom there may never be news, who in every corner of the world suffer and even pay with their lives for their faith in Christ. As Pope Francis recalled during the general audience on April 29: "Today's martyrs outnumber the martyrs of the first centuries. Let us express our closeness to these brothers and sisters. We are a single body and these Christians are the bleeding limbs of the body of Christ who is the Church."

In the journey of the Church, since the protomartyr Stephen, the blood shed by Christians has always been considered food and support for the entire community, a source of inspiration and life, and this continues over the centuries. "Martyrdom is the greatest testimony of faith, because it faithfully reproduces Christ, giving his life so that others can have life in abundance" stressed the Episcopal Conference of El Salvador proclaiming the Jubilee Year of Martyrs, after 40 years since the martyrdom of Saint Oscar Arnulfo Romero, with the intention of remembering the national martyrs: Fr. Rutilio Grande, Saint Oscar Arnulfo Romero, Fr. Cosme Spessotto. "The martyrs gave their lives and accompany us on our pilgrimage of faith. We want to hear their voice and at the same time we want to make that voice echo" wrote the Bishops.

In this year 2020, marked by the Coronavirus pandemic, we cannot forget that "among the bleeding members of the body of Christ" there are hundreds of priests and religious women, hospital chaplains, pastoral workers in the health care world, as well as Bishops, who lost their lives during their service, doing their utmost to help those affected by this disease in places of care. Priests are the second category after doctors who paid with their lives due to Covid in Europe. According to a partial report by the Council of Bishops' Conferences of Europe, at least 400 priests died on the continent from the end of February to the end of September 2020 due to Covid. Among these there are many missionaries who, after having spent long years in mission lands announcing the Gospel of Jesus Christ, died affected by the virus, which had the upper hand on their bodies, worn out by a life spent for the most part between the privations and the difficulties of the missions.

Fr. Jozef (Jef) Hollanders, of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate (OMI), was killed in a robbery in the parish of Bodibe, near Mahikeng, in the northwestern province of South Africa, on Sunday night 12 January 2020. His body was discovered on Monday afternoon by a parishioner. Fr. Jeff was found tied hand and foot and with a rope around his neck, he probably died of a heart attack or strangulation. It is not excluded that Fr. Hollanders suffered a robbery attempt, but according to Archbishop Phalana, the robbers were misinformed: "Everyone knew he had no money. He served a poor community. He used every penny he ever owned for his people. He gave away everything he had". Fr. Hollanders was "full of enthusiasm, life and dedication" and spoke fluently Afrikaans and Tswana, a Bantu language spoken in South Africa and Botswana. Fr. Hollanders was born in Belgium on March 4, 1937. He professed his first vows as an Oblate on September 8, 1958 and was ordained a priest on December 26, 1963. He arrived in South Africa on January 31, 1965, where he spent 55 years of full and intense missionary life.

On the morning of January 20 2020, some bandits, perhaps Fulani shepherds, attacked the community of Abebe. In the shooting, Augustine Avertse, the leader of the local Catholic community died together with his father, Akaa'am Avertse, and two other people.

One of the survivors, who was injured, said that the attack was not provoked, as there had never been any form of misunderstanding between the members of the community and the Fulani shepherds who lived in the area.

On February 1, 2020 His Exc. Mgr. Matthew Hassan Kukah, Bishop of Sokoto, Nigeria, announced the discovery of the body of Michael Nnadi, the youngest (18 years old) of the four seminarians who had been kidnapped by gunmen from the Good Shepherd major Seminary of Kakau, in the State of Kaduna, in northwestern Nigeria. The other 3 seminarians were released on January 18 and 31. Mustapha Mohammed, later arrested on suspicion of being the murderer of Michael Nnadi, gave an interview in which he took responsibility for the murder because, according to his account, the young seminarian "continued to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ" to his kidnappers. Mustapha, 26, who was identified as the leader of a 45-member gang dedicated to robbing motorists, nevertheless praised Nnadi's "exceptional courage" and reported that the seminarian "said to abandon the way of wickedness otherwise he risked dying".

Among the 24 people killed, one was a Catholic catechist, who was one of the first catechists sent on a mission when the diocese of Dori was founded, which roughly corresponds to the Sahel part of Burkina Faso. Following the attack, the decision was to also close the parish in Sebba. The diocese of Dori has a huge territory, Catholics are about 2% of the population. There are 6 parishes, 3 of which have been closed due to the attacks committed by jihadists. The clergy was brought together in Dori as well as the titular catechists together with their families.

According to the mother, the eldest of the two daughters had already suffered abuse in the past, which had been reported without any results. Mgr. Pablo Schmitz Simon, Bishop of the Diocese of Bluefields and Apostolic Administrator of the Diocese of Siuna said: "Facts like this reflect the society we have built so far: a violent and male chauvinist society that does not respect life, care of girls and boys, which makes women even more cruelly defenseless and at risk, especially poor women, single mothers, young people, teenagers and girls. In the face of so much barbarism, I join my voice to all the voices that cry out for justice, I reaffirm our commitment and encourage in the different parish communities of Siuna to carry out actions that support the women of our communities, to take care of them, to protect them and denounce any fact that endangers their physical, psychological and spiritual integrity".

The military denied the existence of an incident, accusing R. Tigau of being a member of the armed criminal separatist group (Kelompok Kriminal Separatis Bersenjata - Kksb), a term used to indicate one belongs to the TPN-PB. The assertion that Tigau was a member of the TPN-

PB was rejected by Father Martin Kuayo, Administrator of the Catholic diocese of Timika, Papua, who confirmed that Rufinus Tigaus was a peaceful catechist of his own diocese.

The perpetrator of the crime is apparently a guest of the community, who first attacked the priest and then set the fire. Br Leonardo, 78, had been a commercial agent before radically changing his life. He became a Camillian in 1986, since 1996 he was in charge of the “Tenda di San Camillo” in Riposto, to which he had dedicated himself with passion and without sparing himself.

The lifeless body of Zhage Sil, a Catholic seminarian, was found in a ditch in Jayapura, in the Indonesian province of Papua, on the evening of 24 December 2020. The community of Sorong-Manokwari, the diocese to which Sil belonged, received numerous messages of condolence from religious and lay leaders who strongly condemn the atrocious act. "I am shocked by his sudden and tragic death. He would have become a deacon next year and a diocesan priest immediately after", said Fr. Johan, parish priest in the diocese of Jayapura. Fr. Johan, who knew Sil personally, added: "He was a courageous person who cared about people's needs and was not afraid to raise his voice, especially when it came to justice. ## PASTORAL CARE WORKERS KILLED FROM 1980 TO 2019

Vatican City (Agenzia Fides) – According to data in Fides’ possession, in the decade from 1980-1989 115 missionaries lost their lives in violent manners. This number, however, is doubtful, based only upon the cases which made news.

The collective summary from 1990-2000 presents a total of 604 missionaries killed, still according to our information. The number is significantly higher than the previous decade, however, one must also consider the following factors: the genocide in Rwanda (1994) that caused at least 248 victims among church personnel; the increased speed of the mass media in disseminating the news even from most remote places; the total does not include only the missionaries ad gentes in the strictest sense, but all church personnel killed in a violent manner, or who sacrificed their lives aware of the risks they ran, while not abandoning the people in their care.

During the years 2001-2019 the total of the pastoral care workers killed is 485.
